PLAN PROGRAM FOR RECEPTION CINCINNATI MEN

Good Will Party Travels With Band, Will Give Concert and Community Sing—Local Men to Give Welcome

MEETING TO BE OUTDOORS UNLESS RAIN PREVENTS

Unusual interest surrounds the visit of the Cincinnati Good Will Party, comprising 100 of the leading merchants and manufacturers of that city upon the occasion of their visit to Middlesboro. This party travels in their own special train, consisting of five sleepers, two dining cars and a baggage car. This train is scheduled to arrive at 12:40 p. m., May 25, and depart at 1:40 p. m.

The purpose of making this trip is for the Cincinnati business men to learn about our city and the section of the United States they are traversing in their five days tour which leaves Cincinnati, Sunday May 20 at 10 p. m.

They have emphasized the point that while they will be very glad to be afforded the opportunity of having various members of their party deliver speeches in our city, that their primary motive is to meet and become acquainted with our people and to hear about our city, therefore, they would rather listen to what our people have to say in preference to asking us to listen to what they may have to say concerning Cincinnati.

A committee to arrange a program for the reception of these visitors here has been appointed as follows: T. R Hill, chairman, C. O. Brown, C. A. Blackburn, R. K. Judy, Hugh Allen, F. R. Whalin, and W. E. Frazer. They will arrange for speakers to address the visitors. The program will be give out-of-doors unless it is raining and then it will be held in the Manring Theatre. The Cincinnati party will parade the streets with their band and they will give a musical concert.

Accompanying the Cincinnati Good Will Party, will be two motion picture photographers who will secure motion pictures of our townspeople greeting this party at the station.

At each city visited, a community sing will be held in which a box of candy is offered to the little boy and the little girl who sings loudest or best, as the case may be.

Cincinnati was named after the Society of The Cincinnati, an organization composed of Revolutionary War officers which was organized immediately following our War of Independence. Cincinnatus was a valiant old Roman statesman and warrior who is accredited with having deserted his plow in the middle of a furrow and hastened to take command of the Roman legions upon the occasion of one of the invasions of Roman territory by the Barbarians. Cincinnatus will be impersonated by Horace G. Williamson, a former President of the Cincinnati Rotary Club, and he will wear a Roman costume, an exact replica of that of the old Roman soldier, statesman and farmer.

Cincinnatus will not only assist in leading the "Community Sings," but will also head the parade of Cincinnati people when they parade thorugh the business sections of the different cities to be visited.

A radio receiving outfit is carried on the special train to enable the members of this party to keep in touch with affairs at home.

A feature of interest to the children is a monkey from the Cincinnati Zoo which is the mascot of the party.

PRELIMINARY HEARING BOYD BROWNING TO BE HELD SOON

Preliminary hearing of Boyd Browning, charge dwith assaulting a Marsee boy at Fern Lake a few weeks ago, will take place here soon before Magistrate Chas. G. Smith, according to a information received from County Judge J. S. Bingham. It is understood that he will not be tried on the lunacy charge. If there is sufficient evidence to hold Browning he will be bound over to the grand jury by the magistrate. He is still held at the city jail and is said to show no traces of insanity.

Bradner will talk on the school athletics: at 8:45 o'clock Tuesday night Miss Jackson, superintendent of Grace Nettleton Home, will talk on the Home and she will bring along a group of little girls to sing a few of their songs: at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night T. R. Hill will present the needs of the Red Cross: and at 8 o'clock Thursday night Prof. J. J. DeWall of Red Bird Settlement School will be here to tell the needs of his school.

BILLBOARD ON OWSLEY LOT IS CIVIC ADVERTISEMENT

"Middlesboro 10,000 Welcomes You" is the greeting painted in large letters on the top of the fancy billboard erected on the corner of the S. Owsley lot. "The largest and most progressive city in Southeastern Kentucky" is another bit of civic advertising on the board. The sign is very noticeable and one that visitors will be almost certain to see.

In the center of the billboard is painted a landscape on either side of which are advertisements of local firms. The new board fence is one of the striking results of the city-wide clean-up campaign. From an unsightly lot piled with rubbish, the place has been cleaned up, the board bench has been removed and plans for making the place a park have been made.

C. O. BROWN TO THEATRE OWNERS CONVENTION IN CHICAGO

C. O. Brown, manager of the Manring Theatre, leaves Saturday for Chicago where he will attend a convention to be held May 19 to 26, of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America. About eight thousand motion picture owners are expected to attend this meeting. Mr. Brown will join the delegation from Louisville leaving there Saturday. After the convention he will go on to New York to book shows for next season.

Cleveland Officer Mysteriously Slain

John L. Whitfield (right) is being sought in connection with the mysterious slaying of Patrolman Dennis Griffin (left), member of the Cleveland police force. The authoriries wis hto question him with the hope he may be able to thro wlight on the mystery. He was last seen wirh the dead officer, who had arrested him and was taking him to the station.

The officer's nude body was found in a shallow grave about 21 miles southeast of Cleveland near Chagrin Falls, 300 feet off an almost abandoned road, near the spot where charred remnants of his clothing were discovered.

GIBBONS TO TRIAL WITH HEAVY GUARD

Brought By Machine Gun Troop to Testify at Trial Mrs. Noffsinger, His Alleged Accomplice

By Associated Press.

HENDERSON, May 17.—Guarded by twelve members of Troop C, machine gun squadron, Hopkinsville, in command of Captain Bailey Bradford and Lieut. John Hemby, Ollie Gibbons, serving life term in Eddyville penitentiary for the murder of Gus Noffsinger, was brought here this morning to testify in the trial of Mrs. Luralie Noffsinger, charged with accessory in the murder of her husband who was slain with a hammer. Soldiers met the prisoner and two penitentiary guards at Princeton and escorted them here.

At noon today nine jurors were accepted to try Mrs. Noffsinger with three others in the box subject to challenge. Mrs. Noffsinger apparently has lost interest in the case. Gibbons was brought into the court room and taken to an ante room under guard. He looks about the same as when convicted of participation in Noffsinger's murder. There was no demonstration when he was taken from the depot to the open court room.

DERBY VISITORS START ARRIVING

Large Crowd in Louisville Saturday Promised—600 Cars to Be Packed in Yards

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—The first of a large number of special trains arrived here last night from New York bringing visitors for the Kentucky Derby Saturday. Six hundred cars will be packed in yards of various railroads, it was announced here. A large crowd saw the derby candidates work out during the morning at Churchill Downs.

NEGRO WHO SLEW OTHER SUNDAY STILL AT LARGE

Charlie Mopley, negro who killed Joe Davis at Yellow Creek last Sunday morning, is still at large, according to reports of officers in that vicinity. Mopley fled immediately after the tragedy, going into the mountains where it is believed he is still in hiding.

Joe Davis was buried in a local cemetery yesterday. His brother from Lynch was here to make arrangements for the funeral. Another brother at Atlanta who was notified did not come here.

Reasons Why You Should Support The Community Chest Campaign

Reason No. 1

The Boy and Girl Scouts

MIDDLESBORO'S future depends upon our boys and girls of today. If they are left to follow the paths of least resistance we can not expect the man hood and womanhood of the future to be strong, virile, and dominating. If we develop in our boys and girls, strength, power, responsibility, and leadership, our city of the tomorrow will be a leader in every municipal activity. The future of our city depends upon what we do for our children.

THE Scout Movement is the greatest agency of the present day in directing the enthusiasm, energy, and tendency of the boys and girls during their leisure hours. In Middlesboro this movement has not been recognized or encouraged. The Community Chest Campaign Committee has set aside $750.00 for the promotion of this most worthy movement and every citizen of Middlesboro is expected to give, and to give largely because this project is incorporated in the budget.

We must have $17,000, and $750.00 of this must go for our boys and girls in Middlesboro.

Hear Rev. McClure at the Manring tonight at 8:00

STATE RIGHTS SUBJECT BEFORE WOMAN'S CLUB

Lexington Woman Says Child Labor Constitutional Amendment Gives To Much Power, But Club Women Endorse Idea

FULL LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM OUTLINED AT CONVENTION

By Associated Press.

WINCHESTER, May 17.—A spirited debate on state rights was precipitated by Miss Laura Clay of Lexington at the convention of Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs today. She spoke in opposition to the resolutions endorsing the movement to have congress propose and the states ratify a constitutional amendment to give congress power to enact laws necessary to prevent exploitation of chil dlabor. She asserted it dangerous to enact any constitutional amendment. She said it will give eastern industrial states great power and declared the enactment of "whatever laws congress thinks necessary," would be placing a weapon in the hands of the industrial interests. It would be sectional legislation, also, she said, because it would injure children of the south where they develop more rapidly than in the north. The resolution passed, however, overwhelmingly.

Bills to be introduced in the next legislature to devise a state text book law and provide for the appointment of a state board of education of five members: for better financial support of the University of Kentucky: for the establishment of a state farm for delinquent women, and for the suppression of prostitution were proposed in resolutions subimitted at the opening session of the twenty-ninth annual convention of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs at the First Christian church here yesterday morning.

Another resolution was proposed the nomination of Governor be pledged to reappoint members of the state that all candidates of both parties for board of charities and corrections whose terms will expire during the next gubernatorial term. A resolution was also proposed favoring the move to erect a woman's building on the campus of the University of Kentucky.

CONCERT OF GLEE CLUBS IS TONIGHT

Excellent Program Planned by High School Boys and Girls Under Miss Seay's Direction

The program of the concert to be given tonight at the Central School auditorium by the high school boys' and girls' glee clubs, promises to be very good. The concert is under the direction of Miss Lillian Seay, public school music director. Miss M. Rey Taylor will be the accompanist.

The numbers will be varied in character. There will be several solos, several numbers by each the boys' and the girls' glee clubs, and the high school orchestra, and several by choruses of the girls and boys combined.

Members of the Boys' Glee Club are: Harold Adams, Henry Billingsley, Deral Biggerstaff, Raymond Burke, Neil Callison, Jack Chesney, Roger Cecil, Wellman Cooke, Abe E. Euster, Rice Gibson, Glen Herd, Robert Hobbs, Kee Kinnaird, Lewis Lyon, Charles Neighbors, Bob Ralston, Rondle Hollofield, George Sewell, Henry Sewell, Earl Slone, Humberta Terry, Ben Vanbeber, John Wallbrecht and Henry Austin.

Members of the orchestra are: Winnie Pippin, Doris Campbell, Raymond Burke, Roger Cecil, Henry Sewell, Charles Neighbors, Bill Haynes.

Mrs. Rosemary Perceful, councilwoman, has sold her house on Exeter avenue to Tobe Hall of Fork Ridge.

CAPT. JAMES VEAL DIES HERE TODAY

To Be Taken to Lexington for Burial—Was One of Last Officers of Morgan's Men

Capt James Veal, old-time Middlesboro resident, died at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of his son-in-law Judge J. F. Bosworth, on Edgewood road, after an illness of about a month. He will be taken to Lexington tomorrow night for burial there Saturday morning. He was eighty six years old.

Captain Veal was one of the earliest settlers in this section. He came to Pineville before Middlesboro was founded, from Fayette county where he was born and lived the earlier part of his life. He moved to Middlesboro in 1888, before the boom, and has lived here ever since.

The deceased was a captain under the Morgan command and served as a Confederate officer under the gallant Colonel Morgan during the Civil War. He attended the last reunion of Morgan's Men held last fall and was among the last few remaining officers of the command.

Captain Veal is survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. F. Bosworth, and three grandchildren, Miss Mary Helburn, Mrs Richard Ramey and J. F. Bosworth, Jr. George Veal of this city is his nephew.

ARRANGE TEAMS IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Contestants Will Play Until All But One Eliminated—Plan for District Meet

Contestants for the President's Trophy, the silver cup which will be given by C. P. Scales in the golf tournament, have been arranged into teams and golf playing for the purpose of elimination is going on this week. Seven teams have been formed and the losing player will be eliminated after each contest. This will continue until there is only one man left who will be the winner of the trophy. It is thought that the final contest will take place and the winner rewarded by May 30.

The golfers have been arranged in teams as follows: Hawkins, Atkins; Will Ralston, Reeves; Sheaffer, Buck Ralston; Henderson, Thomas; Jeffries, Miller; Yeager, Rhorer, Settle and Cabell played yesterday and the latter was eliminated.

Three cups will be awarded during the Southeastern Kentucky tournament which will be held here in the early part of July. These will be awarded to winners in the three flights of players known as the Southeastern Kentucky, the Cumberland Valley and the Middlesboro flights. Players for the flights, or groups, will have to qualify before entering the contest. The score they make during the qualification process will be determine the flight they will enter.

ABBOTT BAZAAR IN HARD LUCK

Not Allowed to Show Here, Then Abandoned by Manager Who Is Arrested on Cold Check Charge

The Abbott Bazaar Company, the carnival which came to Middlesboro the first of the week, seems to be playing in bad luck from first to last. In the first place, the city refused to allow them to show here because their chief attraction was games of chance, forbidden here. Then, when things were as bad as could be, C. A. Abbott, manager of the company, was found to be missing and a while later it was found that he had been put under arrest in Norton, Va., for passing cold checks.

Things for the company seem to be picking up now, though. Wilson, the concession man with them, in partnership with another carnival man, has taken over the company and secured a lease at St. Charles next week. These men have assumed the debts of the company and will go on as formerly.

Abbott, the former manager, was taken through here last night, according to alocal officer, en route to Harlan, accompanied byan officer. He is said to have passed cold checks to the amount of $400 in Harlan. A[bbott] was in Norton when arrangements to[ok] he was arrested charge. T[he] with him officer.

L. AND N. LEASES RAILROAD FOR OUTLET TO SEA

Will Spend Millions Improving C. C. and O., Belt Through Coal Fields of West Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina

SPECIAL OUTLET FOR EAST KENTUCKY COAL FIELDS

By Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—The Post today says the Louisville and Nashville has leased for nine hundred and ninety-nine years the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio railroad. It asserts this gives Eastern Kentucky coal a sea outlet and that the lessee will spend millions of dollars in improving the line. The road forms abelt through the coal fields of West Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina and links up with sea connections at Charleston.

W. Samuels distillery at Deatsville. The patient and his physician however, assert he was hurt in an automobile accident.

STREET BID ADVERTISEMENTS SENT TO CITY CONTRACTORS

Twelve copies of the Daily News containing the advertisement for bids for local street improvements have been sent out. Five Knoxville contractors were among those notified. Several copies were sent to the Kentucky Rock Asphalt company at Louisville and this firm will notify the contractors of that city.

Bids for the work will be received until noon of May 28. The city reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION ARTICLES INCORPORATION APPROVED

Articles of incorporation for the Merchants' Association have been approved by the Secretary of State of Kentucky and a charter has been issued. This makes the organization a legal corporation, broadening its scope of action.

Arrangements for another meeting have not been made, according to officers of the organization, but it is thought that one will be arranged soon. At the last meeting the subject of the harvest festival here next fall was introduced and some committees were appointed and it is understood that further plans along this line will be worked.

RED CROSS GENERAL OFFICES MOVED OVER HILL'S STORE

Red Cross general offices have been moved to the two rooms above the Hill Cash store, having outgrown the old quarters in the Central school building. Miss Wilhelmine Marx, Red Cross nurse, will still retain a branch office at the Central school, but all of the other school supplies will be kept at the general offices and the regular Red Cross work will be carried on from here.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Peace and little daughter, Kathleen Bernice of Corbin were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mays on Exeter avenue.

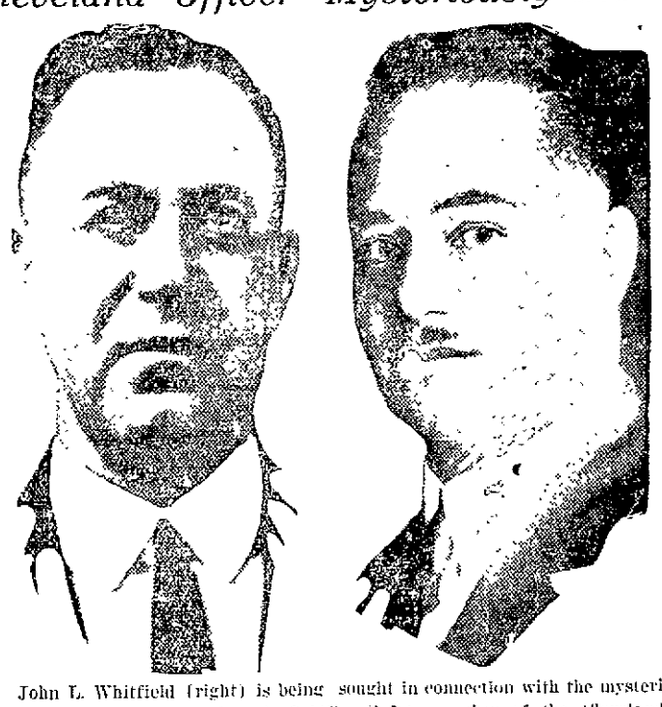
C. O. Brown, manager of the Manring Theatre, leaves Saturday for Chicago where he will attend a convention to be held May 19 to 26, of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America. About eight thousand motion picture owners are expected to attend this meeting. Mr. Brown will join the delegation from Louisville leaving there Saturday. After the convention he will go on to New York to book shows for next season.

Cleveland Officer Mysteriously Slain



John L. Whitfield (right) is being sought in connection with the mysterious slaying of Patrolman Dennis Griffin (left), member of the Cleveland police force. The authorities wis hto question him with the hope he may be able to throwlight on the mystery. He was last seen with the dead officer, who had arrested him and was taking him to the station.

The officer's nude body was found in a shallow grave about 21 miles southeast of Cleveland near Chagrin Falls, 300 feet off an almost abandoned road, near the spot where charred remnants of hisclothing were discovered.

GIBBONS TO TRIAL WITH HEAVY GUARD

Brought By Machine Gun Troop to Testify at Trial Mrs. Noffsinger, His Alleged Accomplice

By Associated Press.

HENDERSON, May 17.—Guarded by twelve members of Troop C, machine gun squadron, Hopkinsville, in command of Captain Bailey Bradford and Lieut. John Hemby, Ollie Gibbons, serving life term in Eddyville penitentiary for the murder of Gus Noffsinger, was brought here this morning to testify in the trial of Mrs. Luralie Noffsinger, charged with accessory in the murder of her husband who was slain with a hammer. Soldiers met the prisoner and two penitentiary guards at Princeton and escorted them here.

At noon today nine jurors were accepted to try Mrs. Noffsinger with three others in the box subject to challenge. Mrs. Noffsinger apparently has lost interest in the case. Gibbons was brought into the court room and taken to an ante room under guard. He looks about the same as when convicted of participation in Noffsinger's murder. There was no demonstration when he was taken from the depot to the open court room.

DERBY VISITORS START ARRIVING

Large Crowd in Louisville Saturday Promised—600 Cars to Be Packed in Yards

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—The first of a large number of special trains arrived here last night from New York bringing visitors for the Kentucky Derby Saturday. Six hundred cars will be packed in yards of various railroads, it was announced here. A large crowd saw the derby candidates work out during the morning at Churchill Downs.

NEGRO WHO SLEW OTHER SUNDAY STILL AT LARGE

Charlie Mopley, negro who killed Joe Davis at Yellow Creek last Sunday morning, is still at large, according to reports of officers in that yicinity. Mopley fled immediately after the tragedy, going into the mountains where it is believed he is still in hiding

Joe Davis was buried in a local cemetery yesterday. His brother from Lynch was here to make arrangements for the funeral. Another brother at Atlanta who was notified did not come here.

Reasons Why You Should Support The Community Chest Campaign

Reason No. 1

The Boy and Girl Scouts

MIDDLESBORO'S future depends upon our boys and girls of today. If they are left to follow the paths of least resistance we can not expect the man hood and womanhood of the future to be strong, virile, and dominating. If we develop in our boys and girls, strength, power, responsibility, and leadership, our city of the tomorrow will be a leader in every municipal activity. The future of our city depends upon what we do for our children.

THE Scout Movement is the greatest agency of the present day in directing the enthusiasm, energy, and tendency of the boys and girls during their leisure hours. In Middlesboro this movement has not been recognized or encouraged. The Community Chest Campaign Committee has set aside $750.00 for the promotion of this most worthy movement and every citizen of Middlesboro is expected to give, and to give largely because this project is incorporated in the budget.

We must have $17,000, and $750.00 of this must go for our boys and girls in Middlesboro.

STATE RIGHTS SUBJECT BEFORE WOMAN'S CLUB

Lexington Woman Says Child Labor Constitutional Amendment Gives To Much Power, But Club Women Endorse Idea

FULL LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM OUTLINED AT CONVENTION

By Associated Press.

WINCHESTER, May 17.—A spirited debate on state rights was precipitated by Miss Laura Clay of Lexington at the convention of Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs today. She spoke in opposition to the resolutions endorsing the movement to have congress propose and the states ratify a constitutional amendment to give congress power to enact laws necessary to prevent exploitation of chil dlabor. She asserted it dangerous to enact any constitutional amendment. She said it will give eastern industrial states great power and declared the enactment of "whatever laws congress thinks necessary," would be placing a weapon in the hands of the industrial interests. It would be sectional legislation, also, she said, because it would injure children of the south where they develop more rapidly than in the north. The resolution passed, however, overwhelmingly.

Bills to be introduced in the next legislature to devise a state text book law and provide for the appointment of a state board of education of five members; for better financial support of the University of Kentucky; for the establishment of a state farm for delinquent women, and for the suppression of prostitution were proposed in resolutions subimtted at the opening session of the twenty-ninth annual convention of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs at the First Christian church here yesterday morning.

Another resolution was proposed the nomination of Governor be pledged to reappoint members of the state that all candidates of both parties for board of charities and corrections whose terms will expire during the next gubernatorial term. A resolution was also proposed favoring the move to erect a woman's building on the campus of the University of Kentucky.

CONCERT OF GLEE CLUBS IS TONIGHT

Excellent Program Planned by High School Boys and Girls Under Miss Seay's Direction

The program of the concert to be given tonight at the Central School auditorium by the high school boys' and girls' glee clubs, promises to be very good. The concert is under the direction of Miss Lillian Seay, public school music director. Miss M. Rev Taylor will be the accompanist.

The numbers will be varied in character. There will be several solos, several numbers by each the boys' and the girls' glee clubs, and the high school orchestra, and several by choruses of the girls and boys combined.

Members of the Boys' Glee Club are: Harold Adams, Henry Billingsley, Deral Biggerstaff, Raymond Burke, Neil Callison, Jack Chesney, Roger Cecil, Wellman Cooke, Abe E. Enster, Rice Gibson, Glen Herd, Robert Hobbs, Kee Kinnaird, Lewis Lyon, Charles Neighbors, Bob Ralston, Rondle Hollofield, George Sewell, Henry Sewell, Earl Slone, Humberta Terry, Ben Vanbeber, John Wallbrecht and Henry Austin.

Members of the Girls' Glee Club are: Jean Callison, Lucy Chadwick, Pearl Enster, Dorothy Evans, Edith Campbell, Mary Frances Davidson, Henrietta Davidson, Charlene Gagle, Alice Gloster, Hazel Hampton, Alma Herd, Edith Allen, Aileen Burks, Helen Burnett, Vada Chumley, Kathryn Callison, Elizabeth Hurst, Ruth McClure, Rena Moore, Adeline Morris, Alice Motch, Louise More, Ola Nelson, Winnie Pippin, Thelma Pearman, Hazel Smith, Lucille Short, Virginia Stiles, Lola Smith, Lila Wilson and Madeline Whitaker.

Members of the orchestra are: Winnie Pippin, Doris Campbell, Raymond Burke, Roger Cecil, Henry Sewell, Charles Neighbors, Bill Haynes.

Mrs. Rosemary Perceful, councilwoman, has sold her house on Exeter avenue to Tobe Hall of Fork Ridge.

CAPT. JAMES VEAL DIES HERE TODAY

To Be Taken to Lexington for Burial—Was One of Last Officers of Morgan's Men

Capt. James Veal, old-time Middlesboro resident, died at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of his son-in-law Judge J. F. Bosworth, on Edgewood road, after an illness of about a month. He will be taken to Lexington tomorrow night for burial there Saturday morning. He was eighty six years old.

Captain Veal was one of the earliest settlers in this section. He came to Pineville before Middlesboro was found ed, from Payette county where he was born and lived the earlier part of his life. He moved to Middlesboro in 1888, before the boom, and has lived here ever since.

The deceased was a captain under the Morgan command and served as a Confederate officer under the gallant Colonel Morgan during the Civil War. He attended the last reunion of Morgan's Men held last fall and was among the last few remaining officers of the command.

Captain Veal is survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. F. Bosworth, and three grandchildren, Mss Mary Hellburn, Mrs. Richard Ramey and J. F. Bosworth, Jr. George Veal of this city is his nephew.

ARRANGE TEAMS IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Contestants Will Play Until All But One Eliminated—Plan for District Meet

Contestants for the President's Trophy, the silver cup which will be given by F. P. Scales in the golf tournament, have been arranged into teams and golf playing for the purpose of elimination is going on this week. Seven teams have been formed and the losing player will be eliminated after each contest. This will continue until there is only one man left who will be the winner of the trophy. It is thought that the final contest will take place and the winner rewarded by May 30.

The golfers have been arranged in teams as follows: Hawkins, Atkins; Will Ralston, Reeves; Sheaffer, Buck Ralston; Henderson, Thomas; Jeffries, Miller; Yeager, Rhorer, Settle and Cabell played yesterday and the latter was eliminated.

Three cups will be awarded during the Southeastern Kentucky tournament which will be held here in the early part of July. These will be awarded to winners in the three flights of players known as the Southeastern Kentucky, the Cumberland Valley and the Middlesboro flights. Players for the flights, or groups will have to qualify before entering the contest. The score they make during the qualification process will be determine the flight they will enter.

ABBOTT BAZAAR IN HARD LUCK

Not Allowed to Show Here, Then Abandoned by Manager Who Is Arrested on Cold Check Charge

The Abbott Bazaar Company, the carnival which came to Middlesboro the first of the week, seems to be playing in bad luck from first to last. In the first place, the city refused to allow them to show here because their chief attraction was games of chance, forbidden here. Then, when things were as bad as could be, C. A. Abbott, manager of the company, was found to be missing and a while later it was found that he had been put under arrest in Norton, Va., for passing cold checks

Things for the company seem to be picking up now, though. Wilson, the concession man with them, in partnership with another carnival man, has taken over the company and secured a lease at St. Charles next week. These men have assumed the debts of the company and will go on as formerly.

Abbott, the former manager, was taken through here last night, according to a local officer, en route to Harlan, accompanied byan officer. He is said to have passed cold checks to the amount of $100 in Harlan. Abbott was in Norton where he was making arrangements to take the bazaar when he was arrested on the cold check charge. The Norton officer who was with him turned him over to a Harlan officer here.

L. AND N. LEASES RAILROAD FOR OUTLET TO SEA

Will Spend Millions Improving C. C. and O., Belt Through Coal Fields of West Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina

SPECIAL OUTLET FOR EAST KENTUCKY COAL FIELDS

By Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—The Post today says the Louisville and Nashville has leased for nine hundred and ninety-nine years the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio railroad. It asserts this gives Eastern Kentucky coal a sea ourlet and that the lessee will spend millions of dollars in improving the line. The road forms abelt through the coal fields of West Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina and links up with sea connections at Charleston.

WOUNDED MAN MAY BE LIQUOR BANDIT

Asserts Wound Received in Auto Accident—Officers See Connection With Distillery Robbing

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—A patient registered as Sam Richards, 34, Bardstown, Ky., is being guarded at a hospital here today while federal agents determine if his bullet wound was received i nthe battle Tuesday night between liquor bandits and guards at the T. W. Samuels distillery at Deatsville. The patient and his physician however, assert he was hurt in an automobile accident.

STREET BID ADVERTISEMENTS SENT TO CITY CONTRACTORS

Twelve copies of the Daily News containing the advertisement for bids for local street improvements have been sent out. Five Knoxville contractors were among those notified. Several copies were sent to the Kentucky Rock Asphalt company at Louisville and this firm will notify the contractors of that city.

Bids for the work will be received until noon of May 28. The city reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION ARTICLES INCORPORATION APPROVED

Articles of incorporation for the Merchants' Association have been approved by the Secretary of State of Kentucky and a charter has been issued. This makes the organization a legal corporation, broadening its scope of action.

Arrangements for another meeting have not been made, according to officers of the organization, but it is thought that one will be arranged soon. At the last meeting the subject of the harvest festival here next fall was introduced and some committees were appointed and it is understood that further plans along this line will be worked.

RED CROSS GENERAL OFFICES MOVED OVER HILL'S STORE

Red Cross general offices have been moved to the two rooms above the Hill Cash store, having outgrown the old quarters in the Central school building. Miss Wilhelmine Marx, Red Cross nurse, will still retain a branch office at the Central school, but all of the other school supplies will be kept at the general offices and the regular Red Cross work will be carried on from here.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Peace and little daughter, Kathleen Bernire of Corbin were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mays on Exeter avenue.

A THOUGHT

..Whose mocketh the poor reproacheth his Maker; and he that is glad at calamities shall not be unpunished.—Prov. 17:5.

No man can force the harp of his own individuality into the people's heart; but every man may play upon the chords of the people's heart, who draws his inspiration from the people's instinct.—Kossuth.

DECLINE OF CRIME IN MIDDLESBORO

One year ago today was the date of the sensational shooting at the Pineville courthouse in which one man was killed, four others were wounded and the county and whole section shocked by sue han outbreak. Reports of the story were broadcasted throughout the country as if to vindicate the already well-established proofs of mountain lawlessness.

The tragedy was the more appalling because all of the participants were Middlesboro men. But it is a reassuring thought to consider that, since this affray, there has not been a single like incident in Middlesboro or among Middlesboro people. During this past year only one killing has been recorded in Middlesboro and that, allegedly, in self defense.

There are red pages in Middlesboro's history, covering days when the town scarcely knew any law but force, when every man carried a gun because he needed one, and when gun play was the natural course of events. Taking of life was a common thing in those days and more frequently than not the provocation was a slight one. Even into recent years this order of things had penetrated and Bell county and Middlesboro had gained a most unenviable reputation throughout the section for lawlessness and crime.

Strictly speaking, it is only the last few years that have seen a change and, particularly, only the last year that has marked the shaking aside of the old order. Better schools, better roads, enforcement of prohibition and a general awakening in the mountains has taken hold of the people until lawlessness is no longer an accepted thing. Our city stands today as one of the most progressive and beautiful cities in the section and the shaking off of the old stigma has been almost entirely accomplished.

NATIONAL ISOLATISM

President Harding's remark to the effect that nobody could hold the presidential office without being convinced that it would be impossible for the United States to stand aloof from the world will occasion no surprise.

It mirrors the experience of all our presidents—those of the earliest day of the republic as well as those of the most recent.

Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe were perfectly conscious that the United States could not assume an attitude of detachment from the world. We had finished the War of Independent and were soon to fight the War of 1812. We had sent our navy to the Mediterranean to chastise the Barbary pirates. We purchased the Louisiana territory and Florida and started on our expansion to the Pacific.

A state of this sort could not live alone. It was never meant to live alone. What Washington advised was non-entanglement in the local quarrels of Europe, not a severing of all ties with Europe.

The United States is not and never had been a hermit nation. No American statesman of commanding prominence have been isolationists. It is a delusion to think so. Isolation and hermitage as American ideals are absolutely fanciful. They are the creation of gifted musers or exmusers on what never was, like William E. Borah and Hiram Johnson.—N. Y. Tribune.

Do you know Baseball?
by Billy Evans

Questions

ONE—Runner is tagged with the back of the gloved hand, the ball being held in that hand by the fielder as he made the touch. Is it necessary that the runner be touched with the naked ball?

TWO—Bases filled and three and two on the batter with two out. Next pitch is a ball, sending batsman to first and advancing all runners a base. Runner coming up from third overruns bag and is caught on snap throw from catcher. Runner coming home from third has not yet crossed plate. Does run count?

THREE—Is there any limit as to the number of runners in a rump?

FOUR—Who has the right-of-way on batter ball, fielder or runner?

FIVE—With two strikes on batter, one out and runner on third, batsman misses third strike, which strikes his person. Runner on third scores, batsman reaches first base. What about it?

Answers

ONE—Runner is out. It is not necessary that runner be tagged with the naked ball. It must be held, however, in the hand making the touch.

TWO—Run counts, even though third out was made before runner coming from third crossed the plate. With bases filled, the base on balls entitled runner on third to score. It is impossible to deprive him of that right.

THREE—There is no limit as to the number of players of the team in the field who may take part in a runup.

FOUR—The fielder always has the right-of-way on a batted ball. The runner must avoid him or suffer the penalty of being called out for interference.

FIVE—Batsman is out if third strike touches his person. In this case runner on third returns to that base as play is suspended when ball strikes batsman.

"SOULS FOR SALE," MANRING TONIGHT, DRAMATIC PICTURE

Rupert Hughes has never been more dramatic in the picturing of a story than in his newest Goldwyn film, "Soul for Sale," which is coming to the Manring theatre tonight and tomorrow night, although his hand has by no means lost its cunning in the depiction of the comedy and the little realistic touches of ordinary life which make the whole world kin.

Mr. Hughes was given a cast of players which is second to none which has ever appeared in any Goldwyn picture. Chief interest will, perhaps, center in Eleanor Boardman who portrays the leading role. In the brief space of a year, this actress has risen from film to star. Her beauty and magnetic charm have had but little to do with this sudden rise to fame. It was her excellent work in "Girlmie," "The Stranger's Banquet" and "Vanity Fair" which won for her the leading role in "Souls for Sale" and a long term contract with Goldwyn. Five other important roles in the film are acted by capable and experienced players. Mae Busch, Barbara La Marr, Frank Mayo, Richard Dix, and Lew Cody.

The production is on a big scale, rising to the spectacular climax in the burning of the great circus. The photography by John Mescall is far beyond the ordinary and is a feast of delight to the eye.

CONTINUATION OF LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO THE GAY LITTLE MARQUISE

At that moment, dear gay little Marquise, I would gladly have exchanged places with you. Everything in the apartment was so beautiful. I had had so much comfort in fixing the house and John Alden Prescott had not contributed one cent toward its furnishing. Neither would he have had a cent to apply upon his stock payment if he had not married me. He had saved nothing. Why should he make me pay for old stock that was his business?

I looked at him and found an absolute stranger. I was sitting opposite a man who was not only unknown to me but for whom I had a strange antipathy.

I knew that John liked pretty things, tasteful interior decorations and comfort, quite as well as I. These I had given him and received not one word of commendation. Nothing except fault finding and ugly looks.

"How much are you paying for this apartment," was his next question after a long silence.

I drew the lease from my bag without a word and placed it in his hands.

Fifteen hundred dollars a year!

Jack rose to his feet with a jerk and threw the lease on the floor.

"How do you suppose we are going to pay such rent as that on a five thousand dollar a year salary?"

"You told me this evening that you expected a raise in your salary tomorrow."

"Don't you know Leslie, that we cant pay rent on expectations?"

"How did you think you were going to make payments on that stock?"

"Now don't that just like a woman to keep nagging when she finds herself in a corner?"

"I am not nagging, Jack. I have done the very best I could with this apartment. If you had wanted a wife who was thoroughly economical, who knew all about the spending of money carefully and judiciously—which, you will allow me to say, you do not know how to do yourself—you should never have married me.

"You saw how we lived at home. You knew that my father was wealthy. You knew under what conditions I was brought up and you fell madly in love with me. For what reason I do not know, for I do not seem to suit you now.

"You would never have fallen in love with the kind of girl that you evidently want for a wife and I am afraid I cannot be made over into that kind.

"Don't make me wish I had not married you, Jack, for if I do, even for a very little while, it will take from me something that I can never put back into my heart.

"Take me into your arms, Jack, and tell me you love me. Tell me that you, too, made a mistake in not letting me show you the apartment before I signed the lease."

Instead of doing as I asked him, John Alden Prescott said in a voice that I had never heard from him before, "I haven't signed that lease yet. We can move to some other place."

"You won't expect me to rent any other place and move to it, will you?"

"Hardly," he said with a satirical laugh.

Leaving him standing there I went into our bedroom and closed and locked the door.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

SYMPATHY

By Berton Braley

I'm not a Polly-Anna bird.
I cannot sing my woes away;
And when misfortune has occured.
My heart is very far from gay.
I'll grumble when my luck goes "pow"
And doubtless be a sour-faced elf.
But I can tell you anyhow,
I won't be sorry for myself!

I will not always wear a smile,
I'll sometimes whimper at my woes:
I'll often groan in tragic style
And wipe my eyes and blow my nose;
I can't be ever full of cheer
Or lay my troubles on the shelf.
But this I swear with tongue sincere,
I won't be sorry for myself.

I will not tell myself that I
Am most unfortunate of men,
Though I may fret and stew and sigh
And lose my courage now and then.
Through in despair I'm caught and swirled.
Losing my friends, my peace, my pelf.
Still, this I'll tell the cock-eyed world,
I won't be sorry for myself!

IN THE NIGHT

What was it woke me?
All my house is still.
I only hear
The murmur of the clock.
I rise and, bare feet silent
On the cool, clean floor,
I seek my babies' beds
And bend above
Each warm, sweet form.
I cover bared brown limbs
And tuck the blankets in.
Back in my bed
The moonlight falls across
My husband's face.
How sound he sleeps!
How hard he works for us!
How young and good he is!
Here, in this silence,
On by small blue rug
I kneel beside my bed
To pray.

TODAY'S RECIPES

SPRING VEAL CUTLET

Get one cutlet of veal, cut one inch thick. Wipe the veal and roll in seasoned flour, that is, flour to which salt and pepper have been added. Fry it in two tablespoons bacon fat or butter until well browned. Place it in a casserole or baking dish. Add one bunch of leeks or young onions cut in small slices, using about two inches of the green stalk. Peel two fresh tomatoes and cut them into slices.

To the pan in which the cutlets was fried add one-half cup of water and seasonings consisting of one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon paprika and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Bring to boiling point and with a knife scrape off every particle of browned fat which remained from frying the meat. Pour this over the veal and vegetables and bake 30 minutes, basting several times with liquid in dish.

Serve with buttered new potatoes and string beans.

Goes With Military Pomp and Splendor to Maker of Gas Mask

DR KARL CONNELL

OMAHA, May 15.—The government has just awarded a Distinguished Service Medal, not for bravery displayed in killing the enemy, but for tireless work in saving the lives of those of our boys who crossed the sea, that liberty might live.

It was Dr. Karl Connell of Omaha, who, through constant experimenting behind the lines in France, finlaly perfected a gas mask proof against the most deadly poisons the Germans could loosen in the winds.

His was the mask carried by all doughboys and marines and the government, in handing over a symbol of its appreciation, admits that the good Dr. Connell's mask accomplished never can be estimated.

The recipient of the honors was a major in the medical corps during the war. He worked night and day in his laboratory. His tools were gases which could snuff out lives as easily as a swatter exterminates a fly.

His product was the only one that could be relied upon completely, it is said.

When the medal was given, military pomp and splendor accompanied it, and General George B. Duncan acted as the nation's spokesman

It was one of those few occasions in American military history when an hell to one because of saving—not destroying—life.

HARLAN NOTES

Miss Hallie Burns has resigned his position as secretary to Cumberland Insurance Agency and has accepted a place as stenographer in Sheriff J. H. Blair's office.

Charles D. Cole was in London on business Monday and Tuesday.

GAS ON STOMACH WON'T LET YOU SLEEP

Gas often presses on heart and other organs, causing a restless, nervous feeling which prevents sleep. Simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, expels gas and relieves pressure almost INSTANTLY, inducing restful sleep. Adlerika often removes surprising old matter from BOTH upper and lower bowel which poisoned stomach and caused gas. Excellent to guard against appendicitis. At Frank L. Lee & Co., druggists.

Here's a Rather Interesting Incident In Our Experience

Years ago I tried to sell a man some Automobile Iusurance—BUT DIDN'T.

He said he didn't expect to be hurt and would take a chance—HE DID.

About a year ago he said he was away ahead of the game—HE WAS.

That is, he hadn't paid premiums "for nothing" for ten years or so, and figured he was quite a little to the good—BUT WAIT!

The old law of averages got busy. An automobile hit him—HARD, TOO!

They put him in a nice clean hospital room at $50.00 per, and got a good-looking nurse at $45.00 per, and a highly trained surgeon—AND EVERYTHING.

After a few days of blissful unconsciousness he began to wonder where "it" would all come from. I couldn't help him—THEN.

In about 10 weeks they turned him over, all fixed up, to his creditors—HE'S STILL WITH THEM.

MORAL: Don't make the same mistake. It is too unforgettable when it strikes home. And buy your automobile insurance in accordance with the same standards that you use for other purchases. Policies are designed to meet the buying standards of different types of people—in the same manner as merchandise is graded for different classs of buyers. In matters of insurance, however—the best is the only kind to have—to avoid disappointment afterwards.

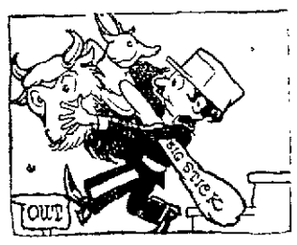
Washington Letter

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Trophies of the chase, prize possession of Theodore Roosevelt, former Nimrod president, have been banished from the White House by President Harding.

I happened on them the other day in one of the workrooms down at the National Museum, where they are to be overhauled before being added to the exhibits. A massive buffalo head. Two immense moose heads. Heads of deer, elk, bear, big horn sheep.



"I guess President Harding didn't like them around," one of the workmen explained. "Or—maybe it was Mrs. Harding. That old head makes a dandy breeding place for moths."

But knowing the president's distaste for the taking of animal life, it's a good guess he gave the orders that cleared them out. Harding frankly admits the thrill of the chase never lured him. Trophies of the kill repel rather than attract him. I once asked him why he never hunted.

"I never could bring myself to take the life of any sentient creature," he explained.

But, speaking of Roosevelt mementoes at the White House; wonder what has become of the big stick? will that find its way to the museum, too?

Carrie Chapman Catt's new book, "Woman Suffrage and Politics," threatens to open anew the scarcely healed breach between the old and new wings in the National League of Woman Voters.

The newer blood in the organization which for most part has come in since votes for women were secured wants the organization to forgive and forget old animosities stirred up during the fight for suffrage. Their viewpoint is that now woman's right to vote is established all women should be interested in using the ballot intelligently, whether they originally believe in the desirability of equal suffrage or not.

In her book, however, Mrs. Catt, reminiscing over old campaign days, says some rather caustic things about the anti-suffragists.

"Bad for the cause," say the women of the new wing, wagging their heads ominously, and rekindling the fires under the organization's internal political pot.

Maybe Senor Don Juan Francisco de Cardenas, chamberlain to his majesty the king of Spain and minister resident and counselor of the Spanish embassy in Washington, is a diplomat, but appearances are against him.

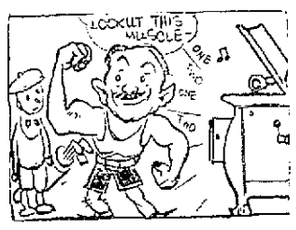
According to tradition, a diplomat moves by indirection, slowly and circumspectly.

But just three weeks after Don Juan met Mme. Lucienne Nano, who had come to Washington to visit her brother, secretary of the Rumanian legation, their engagement was announced.

No delay, little circumlocution there!

Apparently Spanish love laughs at diplomacy as well as at locksmiths.

Presidential participation in the tournament of the Newspapermen's Golf Club has caused about all the Washington correspondents to purchase knee pants and golf clubs and try out their hands to see if maybe they were not embryo champs. If not champs, anyway they figure they stand a chance to break into the presidential class—in golf.



One outstanding holdout, however, is Gus Karger, dean of the active correspondents corps and former publicity adviser to Wm. H. Taft.

"Not me," says Gus, when asked to join the growing colony of golf legs. "I get my exercise by a daily dozen each morning. And if any of these club-swinging athletes don't think I'm a good man, here's an open invite to any one of 'em as wants to tackle me."

GRIST O' GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 15.—Old Coney Island is passing. Surf avenue, famous from coast to coast for its bizarre and blatant circus attractions and trappings, is overshadowed by a new $4,000,000 board walk.

Brass bands, and oratory by the governor, the mayor, and lesser dignitaries have just dedicated the Boardwalk. New York dreams that Coney now clothed in respectability, will outshine Atlantic City.

Maybe they'll have roller chairs later, but just now you've got to use the Boardwalk to walk on. These signs are up.

Prohibited on Boarwdalk

..Spitting — Bicycles..
..Tricycles — Dogs..
Roller skating — Peddling
Persons in bathing suits.

Observed near on of these signs: A swarthy gentleman doing a land-office business with a basket of pretzels. Near another: Boy selling So-an-So's milk chocolate. A cripple passed along on a tricycle.

It was too cold for bathing suits the day we walked the Boardwalk. But spitting was quite as common as in subway stations, where it is also forbidden.

A restaurant in West 3rd street, just off Washington Square, served gratis a plate of dill pickles with every meal.

"What's them things?" said an innocent tourist from Harlem. "Cucumbers or pickles?"

"Greenwich Village bananas," said a converted native from Shelby, Ind.

Even a native New Yorker knows that the Woolworth building is the tallest building in New York—55 storsie, 792 feet.

Which is the largest office building? The Equitable, 37 stories covering an entire city block, bounded by Broadway and Nassau and Pine and Cedar streets.

And the smallest building? Bronx borough has a candidate—a structure at Melrose avenue and 161st street, four feet wide and 10 feet long. It is occupied by a veterinary surgeon.

Here's a question that is included in the test given candidates for jobs on the New York police force:

"What five streets south of Canal street have names comprising only three letters?"

It stumps nine out of ten New Yorkers. The answer is: Ann, Dey, New, Oak and Elm streets.

One of the best known buildings in New York is the Fuller building. That's its official name, and it is spelled out in large letters over the Fifth Avenue entrance. But 99 out of every 100 persons, including cops, don't know where it is. Even in officials announcements the name is rarely used.

Custom calls it the Flatiron building.

Beating the nickle turnstiles in subway an delevated stations is still a favorite sport. Slugs were used, but the police were too active.

A skinny errand boy solved the problem. He discovered he was thin enough to squeeze between the railing and the spokes of a turnstile when released for exit. Since the turnstiles push open when a passenger comes out of the subway, he simply pulls it out just fare enough to squeeze inside.

If you're too fat you'll get stuck, and if you're not fast enough you'll get pinched.

Perseverance wins. Joseph Haag started working for the city when he was 17 years old. Now his salary is ten fimes as much as it was then.

Haag has just been appointed assistant to the mayor, a newly created job.

It has taken him a while to multiply his salary—just 53 years! he started as an assistant bookkeeper at $900 a year. Recently, as secretary of the Board of Estimate, he got $7500. As assistant to the mayor he gets $9000.

MRS. FLANERY TO HAVE OPPOSITION IN RACE

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 14.—Mrs. William Cromwell, Frankfort, left for Louisville to confer with friends from all parts of the state relative to her announcement or the democratic nomination for secretary of state. Mrs. Cromwell said that she would make known her intention before leaving Louisville.

Mrs. Mary Elliott Flanery of Catlettsburg, representative of Boyd county in the 1922 legislature has already announced for the democratic nomination for secretary of state.

B. of L. E. Rebuked For Refusing To Hire U. M. W.

The following letters are from the Wall Street Journal and represents a very interesting situation in the union ranks:

Correspondence between Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and officials of the United Mine Workers, contains charges by the latter that the brotherhood's recent acquired Coal River Collieries Co., at Prestonburg, Floyd County, Ky., is a non-union operation and is employing "scabs" at less than union wages.

Criticism of the engineer brotherhood's non-union policy first came from the United Mine Workers' district officials early this year. Samuel Pascoe, president of district No. 30, in Ashland, Ky., adjacent to the brotherhood's mine wrote headquarters in Indiana, in part:

"The mine operated at Prestonburg by President Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers does not pay the union scale, and never did. We cannot organize their men. The same condition prevailing at all non-union mines prevail at the engineers' mine. There is not one union miner working at the mine, and we have a local union, 4,195, at Prestonburg, and we cannot get the men working for the engineers to join our union.

"The engineers' mine worked every day during our national strike in 1922, and they were proud of it. We tried to get them out, but could not. The miners at Auxier, that were on strike for five and a half months, just eight miles from Prestonburg, tried to get the engineers' miners to come out on strike with them, but they would not come; and, as I understand, Mr. Stone wanted them to continue work regardless of the United Mine Workers' strike. They pay the same wages as the other scab, or non-union mines around Prestonburg.

"I have our national organizers visit Prestonburg often, and they report to me that they cannot get any of these men to join our organization. It looks to me that President Stone is trying to do all he can to help the non-union operators and their policy of keeping gunmen and thugs in this field. The scab operators say: 'Well, the brotherhood will not let their miners organize—why should we?'"

Mr. Stone's Reply

Mine union officials asked Mr. Stone for an explanation, and his letter in reply said:

"I will here repeat that, so far as the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is concerned, we do not own or operate coal mines. It is true that a majority of the stock of the Coal River Collieries Co. is owned by members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. I have invested my money in this company, and am sure it will be a success. The only way it could possibly fail would be through mismanagement, and this would never happen so long as Brother Prenter and I live.

"We have requested President Lewis of the miners' union three different times to organize the miners, but on account of existing conditions in West Virginia it has become impossible for them to do so. It may interest you to know that we are paying 5 cents a ton above the union scale, and are giving our men union conditions so far as it is possible to do so, and we will be glad to have them organize whenever the miners' union can get an organization on the ground."

Mitchell, "Flyingest" Flyer In Service, Tells Hunt, How, at 42, He Keeps in Condition

BRIG. GEN. WM. MITCHELL

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Want to fly? Then what you need is reflexes, not reflection.

That's the advice of Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, assistant chief of the U. S. Army Air Service, and the "flyingest" individual in these United States. Mitchell has spent more than 2000 hours in the air, has flown 225,000 miles and despite his 43 years is getting "better and better" as a flier every day. I asked him how he did it.

"I just keep my reflexes limbered up," he replied.

"Meaning which?"

"Developing ability to act instinctively—by reflex action, in other words. When you're flying 200 miles an hour your reflexes must be quick. You haven't time to think—your action, reflex, must be quicker than thought."

"How does one get that way—er, I mean, how does one develop and train his reflexes?"

Is Great Equestrain

"By exercises that require quick action and sense of direction and equilibrium. Every aviator should do lots of horseback riding. That's good for his reflexes. Polo, tennis, golf, shooting—they're all good. But above all—horseback riding. I've worked out three horses myself today"—a glance at his watch showed 3:30 p. m.—"and I'll take on at least one more."

A solidly knit, wind-tanned, energetic figure is this aerial athlete who never suggests a flying stunt that he isn't ready to jump out and do himself. Impetuous. Visionary, perhaps, when it comes to forecasting what can be done in aeronautics, but with the knack of putting across, through sheer energy things that make the theorists shake their heads. What he might lack in reflection he makes up in reflexes.

"What other qualification is essential to a good flier?" I asked.

"A stout heart. I mean that literally, not figuratively. The strain on the heart, when flying at high speeds and high altitudes, is very great. The centrifugal force exerted on the heart when making a sharp turn at 150 or 200 miles an hour alone is enough to overstrain or stop a weak heart."

"How sharp a turn can you make, say, at 200 miles an hour—what would be the radius of your curve?"

"Oh, about 50 feet. Just put her over and she flips right around. But you want to be sure your heart's right before you try it."

Every play crack-the-whip? Imagine your heart on the end of the cracker when a corner is snapped at 200 miles an hour! Now maybe you can see why Mitchell wants his fliers to keep tuned up by lots of riding, polo, tennis shooting, swimming and such.

Born In France

And 200 miles an hour is no theoretical speed for this flying general. He het a record of 224 miles an hour last year at Detroit. He has been up 35,000 feet and has covered most of the distances between. He commutes by plane between Washington and Chicago. He has scoured the sky-line of the whole country, from Boston to San Francisco, from Canada to Tia Juana. A jump of 500 miles after supper means no more to him than a trip down town to the theater does to the average suburbanite.

Mitchell was born in France, Dec. 29, 1879. That makes him 43 plus. He looks anywhere from 28 to 35.

He first joined the army back in '98, enlisting as a private in the Wisconsin infantry for the war with Spain. He was shortly advanced to second lieutenant in the signal corps. And look where he's gone fro authere. A brigadier general, while most of the boys who were getting through West Point at the time are still majors and colonels.

In the spring of 1916, Mitchell, who learned to fly while on duty at Newport News, was ordered to Europe as an observer on the allied front. When we entered the war he was given direction of our air activities in France.

Developing Air Giant

Bombing from the air has been one of his pet ideas. He virtually forced the tests by which it was demonstrated land planes could sink battleships with high explosives dropped from the sky. It is natural, then, that his big interest in life just now is the development of the biggest homing plane ever built. This is the "Barling Bomber," now near completion at Dayton.

"She'll have a wing spread of 125 feet," Mitchell says enthusiastically, as he discusses her. "She'll have 2400 horsepower in her six motors and will carry, in addition to her crew of 11 men, two bombs weighing two tons each. She looks like a giant beside our smallest plane—the 60 horsepower Sperry Messenger, which has a wing spread of only 12 feet."

But Barling Bomber or Sperry Messenger—or anything inn between—demand the same qualities in their pilots. While those of us who ride the ground may indulge in reflection, the man in the sky must depend most on reflexion.

Take that from Mitchell!

Defends Runaway Girls; Says Parents To Blame

MISS VIRGINIA YOUNG

Why Do Girls Leave Home?

This is the season when the young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love and the girl's—too frequently—to thoughts of leaving home, according to John S. Ayer, chief of the Bureau of Missing Persons in New York City.

During the past two months he has received 1589 inquiries for girls under 21 who have run away from home.

Last year he received 6999 applications. Of these, 95 were never accounted for.

What leads a girl to leave a comfortable home in a small town and face the uncertainties and dangers of a big city alone?

Virginia Young, head deaconess of a noted haven for runaway girls in New York, believes that parents themselves are usually to blame.

Do you agree with her?

NEW YORK, May 14. "Love of finery and jazz are the cheese that draws the little country mice into the city trap," says Miss Virginia Young.

As head deaconess of the famous No. 17 Beckman Place Shelter House here, Miss Young has listened to the confessions of thousands of runaway girls who have found their way to her ever-open door and shared the hospitality that she always extends to girls in need, irrespective of race or creed.

"The love of finery is as old as Eve herself," she explained. "We all go through it and most of us never quite get over it. It is just as natural for Sixteen to want fine feathers and a good time as it is for Seventy to want an overstuffed chair and a footstool.

"Many of the fads of flappers today seem silly to their mothers and those who have passed the flapper stage. But let them just remember the things that were read to their hearts at that age. They were just as absurd.

Encouragement Needed

"The wise mother knows that if you give a girl enough rope she won't hang herself. Let her have the ridiculous red sandals or the long earrings, if they will make her happy.

"It isn't the girl with the pretty who becomes a wandering daughter. It's the little lonesome girl, who has been denied small luxuries until they have attained an exaggerated importance in her mind, who wants to snatch pleasure where she thinks it thrives—in the big city."

Miss Young believes every mother should make it her business to see that her daughter has opportunities to meet decent young men, and that she has the advantage of such wholesome pleasures as the Girl Scout organization and girls' clubs offer.

"Many a mother," she continues, "goes to the movies, leaving her daughter at home alone in the evening to care for the younger children without realizing just what rebellion goes on inside the daughter's mind.

"And probably father is so busy getting bread and potatoes for his family he doesn't sympathize with his daughter's appetite for cake.

Awaiting Opportunity

"Frequently the girls don't complain, they nurse secret bitterness and keep back part of their wages, bide their time and strike for what seems to be freedom as soon as they can.

"Not that I do not believe every girl should have home responsibilities and should be taught to relieve her mother—certainly not. But point is that a little luxury and some occasional finery and a little genuine understanding will keep her doing so.

"Girls can't be scared into being good, but I belive they can always be kept good if they are correctly handled at home."

Some of Miss Young's experiences with girls are being used as the foundation for a motion picture to be called "Wandering Daughters."

You Can Protect Skin By Proper Use of Powder, Says Rubinstein

Jane Cowl's beauty is a composite of soulful eyes, the most amazing creamy complexion, beautiful hair and the grace of a Greek godess. Yet Miss Cowl never neglects any detail of personal care and always complements her beauty for perfect grooming. Her beauty should last forever.

Between the severe spring weather America has just endured and the brilliant summer sun which will soon be playing havoc with our skins one may look for the usual crop of wrinkles, lines, shriveled and dried up skins.

One cannot control the weather, but at least one can protect the skin by the use of a scientifically shielding powder base.

From the artistic point of view, no finishing touch can succeed without a foundation. The skin is full of pores which are like so many hungry mouths that swallow whatever is brought in direct contact with them.

Rouge and powder no matter how excellent their quality loose their effect by being drawn more and more deeply into the tissues instead of remaining on the surface. But, put something between the cosmetic and the skin and there is no reason why your powder should not last the whole afternoon and evening without your having to add the least mite.

Whenever you see a woman frequently powdering her nose or putting fresh rouge on her cheeks, you may be sure that either she hasn't used a foundation at all or that she has made a poor choice.

French women invariably use a foundation on their lips.

And now comes the question of the character of the foundation. If the skin is normal your choice may be guided by perference so far as the question of whether it shall be a lotion or cream. But if the skin is dry be sure to use something containing soothing oils.

In the evening a vanishing cream is sometimes preferred to a base of any other kind, but for daytime I do not think it is as satisfactory as a balm.

When it happens to be windy or if the sun is shining brilliantly far better results are obtained by using a scientific protective, either in the form of a non-disappearing cream or a lotion.

There are some skins, however, that do not easily discolor and if these happens to be of the oily type a lovely foundation can be made with liquid powder.

Dry powder and rouge should be put on before the liquid dries. This forms a very thin film that is good to protect the pores and is also becoming as it corrects the tendency to shine.

BIG PART TENNESSEE POWER FROM WATER SOURCE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 14.—For the more than half billion kilowatt hours of electrical energy developed in Tennessee during the twelve months ending April 1, 1923, more power comes, according to an analysis just made by the Tennessee public service information bureau of figures supplied by the United States geological survey.

The government's figures in power uses indicate that the state's industries have returned to the thriving activity of 1920, says the bureau. In March this year 44,115,000 kilowatt hours came from the water power plants of Middle and East Tennessee, and the state's total electrical output for the month was 67,965,000 kilowatt hours, or almost 20,000,000 kilowatt hours, more than for the same month last year.

An analysis of the government's figures shows 347,820,725 kilowatt hours were generated by the state's water power turbines last year, while fuels produced 182,618,000 kilowatt hours of energy.

GOOD SOAP FOR TWO CENTS A POUND
Make It At Home By This Easy Process—Takes Less Than 30 Minutes.

Nowadays, more and more women are doing as their mothers did and are making their own soap. If you have never tried it, you will be surprised to see how easy it is to make good soap, soft soap, hard soap or floating soap, just by using kitchen scraps and waste grease together with a can of Merry War Lye, the safe and sure soapmaker.

In the old days when soap was made by the boiling process it took nearly all day to make a kettle of soap. Now it is hardly any work at all—requires no boiling—takes less than 30 minutes. Saves you money and gives you all the pure, clean soap you need for kitchen, laundry and all household purposes.

You will find simple directions for soap-making on the label of every can of Merry War Lye.

Merry War Powdered Lye comes in a convenient can with revolving sifting top that cannot come off, cannot get lost, recloses tightly and preserves contents. It is economical to buy and easy to use.

MAJOR HELBURN DISCUSSES PLANS COMMUNTY CHEST

Outlines Tentative Budget Appropriations, Explaining Various Items and Giving Program to Be Carried Out

BOSWORTH URGES DELEGATION TO DIXIE HIGHWAY MEETING

A lucid outline of the Community Chest program, how far it has progressed and plans for further developments, was given by Major E. S Helburn today at the Kiwanis Club luncheon. Major Helburn is chairman of the committee appointed from the Kiwanis Club to direct the Community Chest campaign.

Major Helburn spoke gratefully, in beginning, of the enthusiastic support that had been given the project thus far, telling in particular of the meeting held in his office Tuesday afternoon andattended by representatives of all the local churches and organizations.

"I have heard only two criticisms of the budget formed at this meeting Tuesday," he said. "One man was indignant that no more was appropriated for the Red Bird Settlement School which asked $4000 and was only allowed $2000; the other thought the only mistake was in allowing so much to Red Bird school because it was so far away and not directly connected with Middlesboro."

He showed that these views could not be reconciled but that the committee had taken the middle course wherever possible. He also announced a meeting of the Kiwanis committee in charge for next Monday and said they would consider any changes recommended in the budget, at this time.

The budget, as has been announced in this paper before, is $17,000. Major Helburn went into details on the appropriations. He explained that the Red Cross was allowed $2800 so that there might be included in the health work at the school the services of a dentist an hour every day. The dentists promised to do this if the city would furnish the paraphernalia needed for their work there.

The fund for athletics, he explained was to be divided, $600 to supplement the amount apportioned by the school board for an athletic coach, and $1400 to make the first payment on an athletic field. The residue of the payment he said would be personally guaranteed by a number of local men and a sum appropriated each year to finish payments.

Speaking of the library, Major Helburn explained that Mrs. J. T. Alderson, the library representative, had asked only $500 in the budget but that, when the committee heard of the splendid work that was being done at the library, averaging seventy-five books let outa day and the reading room crowded by working boys and girls on Sunday, the budget was doubled and the library allowed $1000. He also told why $750 was allotted the Boy and Girl Scouts, and explained some of the needs of Grace Nettleton Home and Red Bird Settlement School, each of which is to be given $2000.

He spoke, too, of the fund of $500 appropriated for planting trees and he paid tribute to Will Kinnaird who, he said, was responsible for planting all of the trees along Middlesboro streets and avenues, which add so much to the beauty of this city. Mr. Kinnaird's work, he said, would be carried on.

Major Helburn then told of the adequate way in which the publicity committee was advertising the campaign, characterizing it as the best advretising scheme ever put on here.

A committee is working now, he said, rating all of the people in Middlesboro who ought to subscribe to this fund. One week from tomorrow, May 25, a whirlwind campaign will be put on. Twenty-five teams will be sent out to canvass the town that morning. The Cincinnati Good Will Party will be here at noon and they will parade with the school boys and girls in what will be one of the biggest celebrations ever held here it the campaign goes over that morning.

The pledges are to be paid in ten monthly installments with ten per cent down. After it is pledged, it will be passed our by an executive committee. Every cent will be recorded on books which will be open for public inspection. Major Helburn closed with a plea for the unanimous and hearty support of the Kiwanians in the campaign, asking that they all arrange their business so as to help in the work next Friday.

Another important matter touched on at the meeting today was brought up by Judge J. F. Bosworth. This was the Dixie Highway meeting to be held in Chattanooga next week at which time the Dixie Highway routing through this section will be definitely established Judge Bosworth brought out the fact that the road from here to Barvourville would be finished this summer and that work already started on the strethe on in to Corbin would put that in shape this year. Then, he said, this route from Corbin to Knoxville would undoubtedly be quicker and better and that, with the added advantages of this route, it should be officially named. He urged the sending of a delegation from Middlesboro and other towns along this way to Chattanooga asking that the route be made through here.

Dr. L. L. Robertson was chairman of the meeting today The prize went to J. M. Goodloe of Big Stone Gap, who made a short talk in appreciation. Middlesboro Hardware Co. gave handsome eversharp pencils as silent boost. Announcement was made of the group meeting of the bankers of southeastern Kentucky to be held here June 7, and for the entertainment of whom elaborate plans will be made.
